THE CONFERENCES

JOHN CASSIAN

THE CONFERENCES

PART II · CONFERENCES XI–XVII

Translated from the Latin by Edgar C. S. Gibson
From Nicene and Post-Nicene Fathers, Series II, Vol. 11, edited by Philip Schaff, D.D., LL.D.

First Edition by the
HOLY NATIVITY PRESS
OTTAWA, ONTARIO
2026

Receive a daily word from the Church Fathers, selected from the patristic library of over eighteen million words.

holynativitypress.com

First Edition by the Holy Nativity Press, 2026.

The text of The Conferences is translated by Edgar C. S. Gibson, from Nicene and Post-Nicene Fathers, Series II, Vol. 11, ed. Philip Schaff (1894).

The scripture index and series notes copyright © 2026 by the Holy Nativity Press, Ottawa, Ontario. All rights reserved.

Scripture references follow the King James Version; Septuagintal references follow Brenton's English Septuagint.

For bulk orders, please contact contact@holynativitypress.com

ABOUT THIS SERIES

The Holy Nativity Patristic Library presents the foundational texts of the early Christian Fathers in carefully typeset pocket editions. Each volume is drawn from the public-domain English translations of the Ante-Nicene Fathers and the Nicene and Post-Nicene Fathers — the thirty-eight-volume collection edited by Philip Schaff and his collaborators between 1886 and 1900, which remains the most comprehensive English-language gathering of the patristic writings ever assembled.

We have undertaken to issue these works one at a time, as portable single-author editions, so that they may travel where the original folio volumes cannot — in a coat pocket, on a long flight, beside a hospital bed. Each volume preserves the Schaff translation and, where there is one, the translator's introduction. The footnote apparatus is retained where it serves the text; we have set aside those notes that pertain only to the nineteenth-century volume context, and any commentary at variance with the Orthodox confession of the Fathers themselves. We add a scripture index for the text in hand.

The texts are typeset in IM Fell English, a face cut by John Fell in seventeenth-century Oxford and freely available again through the work of Igino Marini. The Greek, where there is any, is set in Philokalia, designed for the Athonite tradition.

HOLY NATIVITY PRESS

Ottawa, Ontario

CONTENTS

About This Series vii

THE CONFERENCES

Preface 3

The Second Part of the Conferences of John Cassian 7

XI. The First Conference of Abbot Chæremon 7

Ch. I. Description of the town of Thennesus 7

Ch. II. Of Bishop Archebius 8

Ch. III. Description of the desert where Chæremon, Nesteros, and Joseph lived 10

Ch. IV. Of Abbot Chæremon and his excuse about the teaching which we asked for 11

Ch. V. Of our answer to his excuse 13

Ch. VI. Abbot Chæremon's statement that faults can be overcome in three ways 14

Ch. VII. By what steps we can ascend to the heights of love and what permanence there is in it 16

Ch. VIII. How greatly those excel who depart from sin through the feeling of love 19

Ch. IX. That love not only makes sons out of servants, but also bestows the image and likeness of God 22

Ch. X. How it is the perfection of love to pray for one's enemies and by what signs we may recognize a mind that is not yet purified 26

Ch. XI. A question why he has called the feeling of fear and hope imperfect 27

Ch. XII. The answer on the different kinds of perfection 28

Ch. XIII. Of the fear which is the outcome of the greatest love 33

Ch. XIV. A question about complete chastity 37

Ch. XV. The postponement of the explanation which is asked for 38

XII. The Second Conference of Abbot Chæremon 41

XIII. The Third Conference of Abbot Chæremon 43
Ch. I. Introduction 43
Ch. II. A question why the merit of good deeds may not be ascribed to the exertions of the man who does them 44
Ch. III. The answer that without God's help not only perfect chastity but all good of every kind cannot be performed 45
Ch. IV. An objection, asking how the Gentiles can be said to have chastity without the grace of God 48
Ch. V. The answer on the imaginary chastity of the philosophers 49
Ch. VI. That without the grace of God we cannot make any diligent efforts 51
Ch. VII. Of the main purpose of God and His daily Providence 54
Ch. VIII. Of the grace of God and the freedom of the will 57
Ch. IX. Of the power of our good will, and the grace of God 59
Ch. X. On the weakness of free will 63
Ch. XI. Whether the grace of God precedes or follows our good will 65

Ch. XII. That a good will should not always be attributed to grace, nor always to man himself 69

Ch. XIII. How human efforts cannot be set against the grace of God 76

Ch. XIV. How God makes trial of the strength of man's will by means of his temptations 79

Ch. XV. Of the manifold grace of men's calls 86

Ch. XVI. Of the grace of God; to the effect that it transcends the narrow limits of human faith 89

Ch. XVII. Of the inscrutable providence of God 92

Ch. XVIII. The decision of the fathers that free will is not equal to save a man 95

XIV. The First Conference of Abbot Nesteros 99

Ch. I. The words of Abbot Nesteros on the knowledge of the religious 99

Ch. II. On grasping the knowledge of spiritual things 100

Ch. III. How practical perfection depends on a double system 101

Ch. IV. How practical life is distributed among many different professions and interests 103

Ch. V. On perseverance in the line that has been chosen 105

Ch. VI. How the weak are easily moved 106

Ch. VII. An instance of chastity which teaches us that all men should not be emulous of all things 107

Ch. VIII. Of spiritual knowledge 110

Ch. IX. How from practical knowledge we must proceed to spiritual 115

Ch. X. How to embrace the system of true knowledge 120

Ch. XI. Of the manifold meaning of the Holy Scriptures 123

Ch. XII. A question how we can attain to forgetfulness of the cares of this world 126

Ch. XIII. Of the method by which we can remove the dross from our memory 127

Ch. XIV. How an unclean soul can neither give nor receive spiritual knowledge 131

Ch. XV. An objection owing to the fact that many impure persons have knowledge while saints have not 133

Ch. XVI. The answer to the effect that bad men cannot possess true knowledge 133

Ch. XVII. To whom the method of perfection should be laid open 139

Ch. XVIII. Of the reasons for which spiritual learning is unfruitful 142

Ch. XIX. How often even those who are not worthy can receive the grace of the saving word 143

XV. The Second Conference of Abbot Nesteros 145

Ch. I. Discourse of Abbot Nesteros on the threefold system of gifts 145

Ch. II. Wherein one ought to admire the saints 148

Ch. III. Of a dead man raised to life by Abbot Macarius 149

Ch. IV. Of the miracle which Abbot Abraham wrought on the breasts of a woman 153

Ch. V. Of the cure of a lame man which the same saint wrought 154

Ch. VI. How the merits of each man should not be judged by his miracles 155

Ch. VII. How the excellence of gifts consists not in miracles but in humility 156

Ch. VIII. How it is more wonderful to have cast out one's faults from one's self than devils from another 159

Ch. IX. How uprightness of life is of more importance than the working of miracles 160

Ch. X. A revelation on the trial of perfect chastity 160

XVI. The First Conference of Abbot Joseph 165

Ch. I. What Abbot Joseph asked us in the first instance 165

Ch. II. Discourse of the same elder on the untrustworthy sort of friendship 166

Ch. III. How friendship is indissoluble 168

Ch. IV. A question whether anything that is really useful should be performed even against a brother's wish 171

Ch. V. The answer, how a lasting friendship can only exist among those who are perfect 171

Ch. VI. By what means union can be preserved unbroken 172

Ch. VII. How nothing should be put before love, or after anger 177

Ch. VIII. On what grounds a dispute can arise among spiritual persons 177
Ch. IX. How to get rid even of spiritual grounds of discord 178
Ch. X. On the best tests of truth 179
Ch. XI. How it is impossible for one who trusts to his own judgment to escape being deceived by the devil's illusions 180
Ch. XII. Why inferiors should not be despised in Conference 181
Ch. XIII. How love does not only belong to God but is God 182
Ch. XIV. On the different grades of love 183
Ch. XV. Of those who only increase their own or their brother's grievances by hiding them 186
Ch. XVI. How it is that, if our brother has any grudge against us, the gifts of our prayers are rejected by the Lord 187
Ch. XVII. Of those who hold that patience should be shown to worldly people rather than to the brethren 189
Ch. XVIII. Of those who pretend to patience but excite their brethren to anger by their silence 190
Ch. XIX. Of those who fast out of rage 194

Ch. XX. Of the feigned patience of some who offer the other cheek to be smitten 195

Ch. XXI. A question how if we obey the commands of Christ we can fail of evangelical perfection 196

Ch. XXII. The answer that Christ looks not only at the action but also at the will 197

Ch. XXIII. How he is the strong and vigorous man, who yields to the will of another 199

Ch. XXIV. How the weak are harmful and cannot bear wrongs 201

Ch. XXV. A question how he can be strong who does not always support the weak 201

Ch. XXVI. The answer that the weak does not always allow himself to be borne 202

Ch. XXVII. How anger should be repressed 203

Ch. XXVIII. How friendships entered upon by conspiracy cannot be lasting ones 207

XVII. The Second Conference of Abbot Joseph 209

Ch. I. Of the vigils which we endured 209

Ch. II. Of the anxiety of Abbot Germanus at the recollection of our promise 210

Ch. III. My ideas on this subject 211

Ch. IV. Abbot Joseph's question and our answer on the origin of our anxiety 212

Ch. V. The explanation of Abbot Germanus why we wanted to stay in Egypt, and were drawn back to Syria 213

Ch. VI. Abbot Joseph's question whether we got more good in Egypt than in Syria 215

Ch. VII. The answer on the difference of customs in the two countries 215

Ch. VIII. How those who are perfect ought not to make any promises absolutely, and whether decisions can be reversed without sin 216

Ch. IX. How it is often better to break one's engagements than to fulfil them 218

Ch. X. Our question about our fear of the oath which we gave in the monastery in Syria 219

Ch. XI. The answer that we must take into account the purpose of the doer rather than the execution of the business 220